

He aha te mea nui
o te ao?

He tangata, he tangata,
he tangata.

What is the most important thing in the world?
It is the people, it is the people, it is the people.

Who is this for?

“... sustainable management means managing the use, development, and protection of natural and physical resources in a way, or at a rate, which enables people and communities to provide for their social, economic, and cultural well-being and for their health and safety ...”

Resource Management Act, Part 2, Purpose and Principles

What is the problem?

Housing unaffordability

Social disconnection

Unsustainable resource use

Top-down, profit-driven models

Who is responding?

*“Both the private and public sectors design and deliver housing for abstract, proposed purchasers (e.g. a young family with two children) rather than working with actual individuals and communities.” How We Live

*“I think we need to start taking action rather than ordering another report because we’ve just been going around in circles.” Mayor Jim Mylchreest, Stuff, 17 May

Our solution

Community-driven

Socially connected

Innovative and affordable

Responsible and sustainable

Internationally proven

A model for the future

“... There is a need to make future provision for more sustainable forms of living. Sustainable forms of living are required in order to manage resources that have a limited supply (such as land) as well as to reduce the overall ‘footprint’ on the environment ...”

Waipa District Plan, 2.1.3, Residential Zone

Let's make it happen

Stick to the plan

Partner with community

Help break the cycle

Benefit all levels of society

Nāu te rourou,
nāku te rourou,
ka ora te manuhiri.

With your basket, and my basket,
the people will thrive.